Staff News: Quin Smith completes CFP program

In more staff news Financial Adviser Quin Smith became a Certified Financial Planner (CFP) after successfully completing the internationally recognised CFP program in June.

The CFP qualification is the highest level a Financial Planner can achieve in their studies and the Financial Planners Association of Australia is the only licensing body in Australia authorised to endorse this certification.

Quin joined McLauchlan & Partners as an Associate Adviser in 2006 after graduating from Griffith University with a Bachelor of Business.

In 2007, Quin completed his Masters and was the only Queensland Associate Adviser invited to participate in the MLC Adviser Scholarships program, six months before his colleague Rob Chester was also chosen.

Quin believes that by achieving this Certification it brings together all of his studies and experience over the past four years and formalises his technical and extensive financial planning knowledge.
